BEIRUT, Lebanon, May 12 (AP). — The top military commander of Palestinian forces said today Palestinian guerrillas have "more than replenished" the arms they lost during Israel's invasion of south Lebanon. "We are proud to announce that we have replenished all our losses and have in fact increased our strength," Khalil Wazir, code-named Abu Jihad, the over-all military commander of guerrilla forces, said in Lebanon. Wazir did not say where and how the guerrillas got their new arms, but he implied the aid came from neighbouring Syria, whose forces police an 18-month old civil war armistice in the rest of Lebanon. "The resistance (guerrilla) movement and Syria have set up a joint committee for long-term strategic coordination," he said.

Six of Mr. Carter's fellow democrats voted against the administration.

The White House spokesman said President Carter was extremely gratified by the committee's refusal to vote a resolution of disapproval and said the president remained confident that the full Senate would accept the planned planes sale.

"Our forces have been in the south for years and remaiced there even after the Israeli invasion," Mr. Arafat told Reuters in a reference to the events of last March.

He said there were tactical withdrawals necessitated by battles with the Israeli troops. But he added "we insist on our hasic presence there. "Our pre-sence in the south is only governed by the Cairo agreement which was endorsed hy two Arab summit conferences," adtouring the Gulf states.

It was later incorporated in accords adopted hy two Arab summits in Riyadh and Cairo, which ended the 1975-1976 civil war in Lebanon.

Mr. Arafat, Chairman of the Palestine Liberatioo Organisation (PLO), said he had told U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim that the commandos were still stationed in south Lebanon after the deployment of the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

The force, which was taking over areas evacuated by the Israelis, was set up under a Security Council resolution to supervise Israeli withdrawal and help Lebanon regain control of the region.

"The Palestinian presence in the south is a Lebanese-Palestinian affair and no other party has the right to interfe-

In an apparent reference to Mr. Sadat's peace initiative, Mr. Arafat said: "The Palestinian revolution expounds confrontation with the Zionist enemy (Israel) and helieves this is the path on which the Arab nation should move. Others ave their own ways."

Litan raises storm in Israel

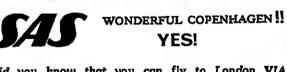

JERUSALEM, May 12 (R). — A statement by Israel's new Chief of Staff that the country must hold on to the occupied West Bank has caused a political storm here.

The Democratic Movement for Change (DMC), on whose 15 member-group Prime Minister Menachem Begin relies for a comfortable parliamentary majority, has joined opposition spok in expressing surprise and anger at the statement by Lt.-Gen.

The DMC's leader, Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, told reporters he intended to raise the issue at next Sunday's weekly meeting of the cabinet. In e television interview last night, General Eitan said the Israel army could not defend the country without controlling the occupied West Bank and the Golan Heights.

The dilemma of statehood water rights

It's rather poetic that while Israel celebrates its 30th anniversary in a virtual state of siege, its new armed forces chief of staff, General Eitan, says that Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank and the Golan Heights cannot be considered because that would make it difficult to defend Israel. He is not saying anything new that has not been said a thousand times before by other Israeli leaders, but it strikes us as something of a shame for the Israelis themselves that they are unable to come out of the security-consciousness maze in which they have been for the 30 years that they celebrate this week.

The security dictates of any state are easy to understand. But a few days ago, Israeli Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, in a meeting with students in Haifa, said that Israel had to stay in the West Bank because "one-third of our water comes from aquifiers located there. If we relinquish control, the flow can be stopped and Israel may be literally dehydrated." Now this makes an interesting point to ponder along with the security reasons that General Eitan has put forward for staying in the West Bank. We believe Mr. Sharon's viewpoint is probably more dangerous, because it indicates that a person will come up with as many reasons as are required to seal an argument for continuing the occupation and colonisation of someone else's land. Neither of these men, of course, has touched on the claim that God promised the West Bank to Abraham, and Menachem Begin is Abraham's representative on earth.

The lessons to be learned from this trend of events is that Israel will not leave the occupied territories very quickly, for reasons of security, water, heavenly covenants made four thousand years ago, or whatever else may be suggested as the occasion demands. Better than anything else we can think of, this illustrates that israel celebrates 30 years or state hood without yet being able to celebrate one minute of the mutual acceptance by its neighbours that is the only guarantor of legitimacy and the breath of life of true independence.

Given what General Eitan and Mr. Sharon are saying, it is probably more appropriate for Israelis this week to mark the failure of their leaders to achieve recognition for Israel in the Middle East, than to mark a statehood that is still undefined and marred by the state's territorial expansion and occupation of Arab territories.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

"Israel yesterday celebrated the 30th anniversary of its creation amid strict and unprecedented security measures -- an anniversary marking the lapse of three decades over the biggest human, moral and political tragedy in modern history, a tragedy that befell the people and land of Palestine, and resulted in a spearhead tearing up the Arah homeland, draining its potential and threatening to rob it of more of its territory." Prince Mohammad opens statistical and social tourist meet

AMMAN, May 12 (JNA). - The fifth statistics and social symposium of the World Tourist Organisation in the Middle East, under the sponsorship of His Highness Prince Mohammad was opened here this morning. Prince Mohammad is the honorary President of Jordan's Higher Tourist Committee. Opening the meeting, the Director General of Tourism, Mr. Michael Hamarneh, disclosed Jordan's annual revenue from tourism amounts to some $300 million. Mr. Hamid Abdul Majeed, Under-secretary of the Egyptian Ministry of Tourism and President of the Middle East Committee, said, during the meeting the Middle East did not receive its due share of the international tourist movement. During the past few years only about four million tourists visited the area per year, a figure equal to one and a half to two per cent of world tourists. They yielded an income ranging between one and a half and two billion dollars which equals about three per cent of the world tourist income. Considering that the Middle East holds at least one quarter ond possibly one third of the world's tourist attractions this share is less than it should be Mr. Abdul Majeed pointed out. Participants in the symposium come from Jordan, Syria, Egypt, Lebanon, North and South Yemen, the World Tourist Organisation, the Arab Union for Tourism and tourist agencies at large. The opening session was attended by the under-secretaries of the ministries of information and industry and commerce and other interested groups.

U.S., Israel protest demand that PLO sign law of sea convention

GENEVA, May 12 (R). — The United Nations Law of the Sea Conference was hit by a new political wrangle last night when Arab delegations said groups like the Palestine Liberation Organisation should be allowed to sign a projected convention. The Arab proposal, backed seventh since the conference by the Soviet delegation, brought immediate protests from the conference envoys of Israel and the United States, Israeli delegate Shabtai Rosenne said it would be "illogical and unwise' to include liberation groups in the Law of the Sea Convention.

U.S. delegate Bernard Osman said there was no precedent for liberatinn groups becoming parties to internationel conventions. "This proposai could complicate efforts to resolve other issues and secure a widely ratified conveotion," the U.S. envoy said.

Since the conference takes nnly cnncensus decisinns, there was no vote on the proposal but it gave a stormy eoding to yesterday's proceedings, with the present two-month sessinn about to enter its final

A leading American scien tist and member of the U.S. oelegatinn meanwhile told reporters he was "shocked" and "very disappointed by the lack of progress being made.

Dr. William Nierenberg, Director of the Scripps Institute for Oceanography, also attacked developing nations for their "attitude to the confer-Saying that he was not speaking for the U.S. delegation, Dr. Nierenberg said: "My feeliog is that 99 per cent of the delegations are geoerally afraid of science.

'I am hewildered by the fact that such nations as the Soviet Uoion, Britain, France, Japan aod Canada are absolutely supine in the conference. They are letting a treaty be rammed down their throats," the scientist said

The present session is the started five years ago in an effort to set international rules for exploration of the sea's fish and mineral wealth and for protection of the marine eovironment.

The idea was to draw up and sign a bioding internatiooal conventioo.

Before the present session began, it was hailed as the crucial one with many coun tries eager to get a treaty before Western industrialised nations began mining the deep seabed for manganese, copper, oickel and cobalt,

A bill at present before the conference would give U.S. mining companies the legal goahead to start mining the deep

Despite this, the latest session has moved at snail's pace, using up its first three weeks to elect a conference presi-

It is now a foregooe cooclusion that a further session will be held next year and few delegates are confident that it will produce a draft law of the sea convention.

up (a consortium of 15 nr so nuclear nations) say is "sensitive" technology -- that is, it can be used for weaponsmanufacture and should be subject to stringent controls. Experts say that nuclear engineers, if nrdered, can change the performance of an enrichment plant ao that instead of producing low-enriched uranium for power-reactors it puts nut high-enriched uranium, which can be made into nuclear weapons.

Brazilian government

In the Netherlands and to lesser extent in Britain, some M.P.s are arguing that Brazil is not fitted for the care of nuclear material. They point to Brazil's military government and to the appointment of Gen. Joao Baptista Figueiredo to he its next president. The general is the chief of Brazil's intelligence services and is widely accused of

They also draw on a recent incident in which six of Brazil's most senior nuclear engineers were threatened by po-lice that they would lose their jobs. The six men last month refused to sign a statement saying that Brazil's first nuclear power station at Angra do Reis, in Rio de Janelto state, is safe.

For its part, Brazil is angry that it is being asked for higher and higher safeguard standards from nations which themselves have the use of -or protection from -- nuclear weapons. The former Dutch Foreign Minister, Max Van Der Stoel, has called on Brazil, for example, tn allnw all its nuclear installations to be open to international inspectors, to make quite certain that no small quantity of plutonium has been smuggled away from the plutonium atorage centre. Brazil, offended at this slur on its honesty, has sugrily refused.

Urenco's row

Meanwhile, the Anglo-Dutch-German combine Urenco has the support of the British and the German government over the safeguards agreement it has negotiated with Brazil. Basically this consists of Brazil agreeing to set up the "plutonium storage regime", under which all plutonium produced from the Urenco fuel can be checked by inspectors from the International Atomic Energy Agency. But the Dutch parliament will not yet accept this as adequate and wants further conditions.

Today it is possible that the row will lead to the break-up of Urenco. It could become an Anglo-German concern, according to reliable sources, with Brazil's uranium sent from Capenhurst in England. The Dutch could be left to use their Almelo plant for what they will. However, M.P.s in Britain are starting to get interested in the Brazil deal, and in Britain's behaviour in offering help over the "hex" plant. They are likely to bring some pressure for explanations from the British government. One of these M.P.s. Mr. Leo Abse, says "This Brazil busi-ness is not out of the wood

In 1973, before the traumatic dollar devaluation of that year, the same $500, at an Sfr4.20, would have guaranteed an income in Switzerland of over Sfr2,000 a month. That would have been enough to pay the monthly rent for a comfortable apartment, plus

And, unlike that pleasant practice in the United States, the Swiss waitress will charge you the same aga-in, every time she fills the cup, instead of refills being on the house.

It must be said that most Americans who are respond-ing to the turnabout in their financial fortunes by beading for home are doing so with reluctance; even if they try to rationalise the step with such explanations as, "Well, we've been away a long time"; or "Wa miss the grandchild-

But the general exodus is likely to continue, unless there's a reversal on a considerable scale of the dollar's current slide. Many of these expatriate Americans feel they are in the best position to tell their fellow countrymen. including Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and President Jimmy Carter, what is really happening to the for-mer real money these days. That's if anyone's prepared to listen.

U.S. Senate committee votes to retain arms embargo on Turkey

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP), — President Jimmy Carter's request that Congress lift its three-year-old embargo on U.S. military aid to Turkey was rejected vesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. In a major foreign policy setback for Carter, the panel voted 8-4 against lifting the embargo that was imposed when Turkey used American-supplied weapons to invade Cyprus in 1974. ey, Democrat-Minnesota, Paul Sarbanes, Democrat-Maryland,

The House of Representa- in Greece by weakening the tives International Relations Committee, by a one-vote margin, had recommended lifting the embargo earlier this month. The Senate is thought virtually certain to maintain the embargo in a full vote later today.

The Carter administratioo has argued that the emhargo is failing to hring about a Cypriot peace settlement.

'I'm persuaded the policy hasn't worked." said Sen Frank Church, one of only three Democrats voting to lift the embargo. "It's useless to persist in a policy that has cle-arly failed." Sen. Joseph Biden, a Delaware Democrat, argued that removal of the emhargo could have long-term repercussions

"less than overwhelming position of the Greek government which has a pro-U.S. opinion."

Biden said Congress should not "trade off Greek good will for prospects and promises" of improved relations with Turkey.

The embargo vote took place as the panel considered authorisation of military aid for foreign countries

Removal of the arms embargo against Turkey drew support only from Sens. George McGovern, Democrat-South Dakota, John Sparkman, Democrat-Alabama, James Pearsoo, Republican-Kansas, and Church. Voting against the administratioo request were Sens. Klayborne Pell, Democrat-

French police send Baader-Meinhof man back to W. Germany curity sources said today that a man sent back to West Germany by French police at Paris airport yesterday was Stefan Wisniewski, accused of supporting the urban guerrillas who murdered business leader Hans-Martin Schleyer. Mr. Schleyer's body was found in eastern France last October after he was kidnapped by the Baader-Meinhof guerrilla gang the previous month.

Last December, the West Germao Central Criminal Of-fice said Wisniewski had traioed as a guerrilla in South Yemen with the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. French airport police said in Paris today that they had in-tercepted a member of the Baader-Meinhof gang at Orly Airport and put him on a fligbt to West Germany.

Security officials in Bonn would not disclose any information about the case.

Mr. Schleyer was killed the day after Baader-Meinhof leaders Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Karl Respe were found dead in their cells at Stammheim Prison, Stuttgart.

In its account of the Paris incident, the newspaper Le Matin said today about 100 police were walting at the airport for a West German who was coming on a flight from Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

U.S., USSR agree to discuss limits on arms to Third World

WASHINGTON, May 12 (R). — The United States and the Soviet Union yesterday announced agreement to discuss restraints oo the sale of arms to Third World countries.

A joint communique issued in Washington and Moscow said the effort might be broadened to include other major arms suppliers in the world.

"After two rounds of consultations, it was agreed that a basis exists to hold regularly scheduled meetings in order to explore concrete measures that could be taken, including measures to engage other supplier countries, to limit international transfers of conventional arms," the communique said.

State Department Spokesman Hodding Carter stressed that any agreed restraints wodise necessary arms shipments by the U.S. or the Soviet Uoion to their friends or allies.

U.S. officials said the aim of the restraints was to slow the growing arms race among developing countries.
